Creativity

and culture in the context of AI

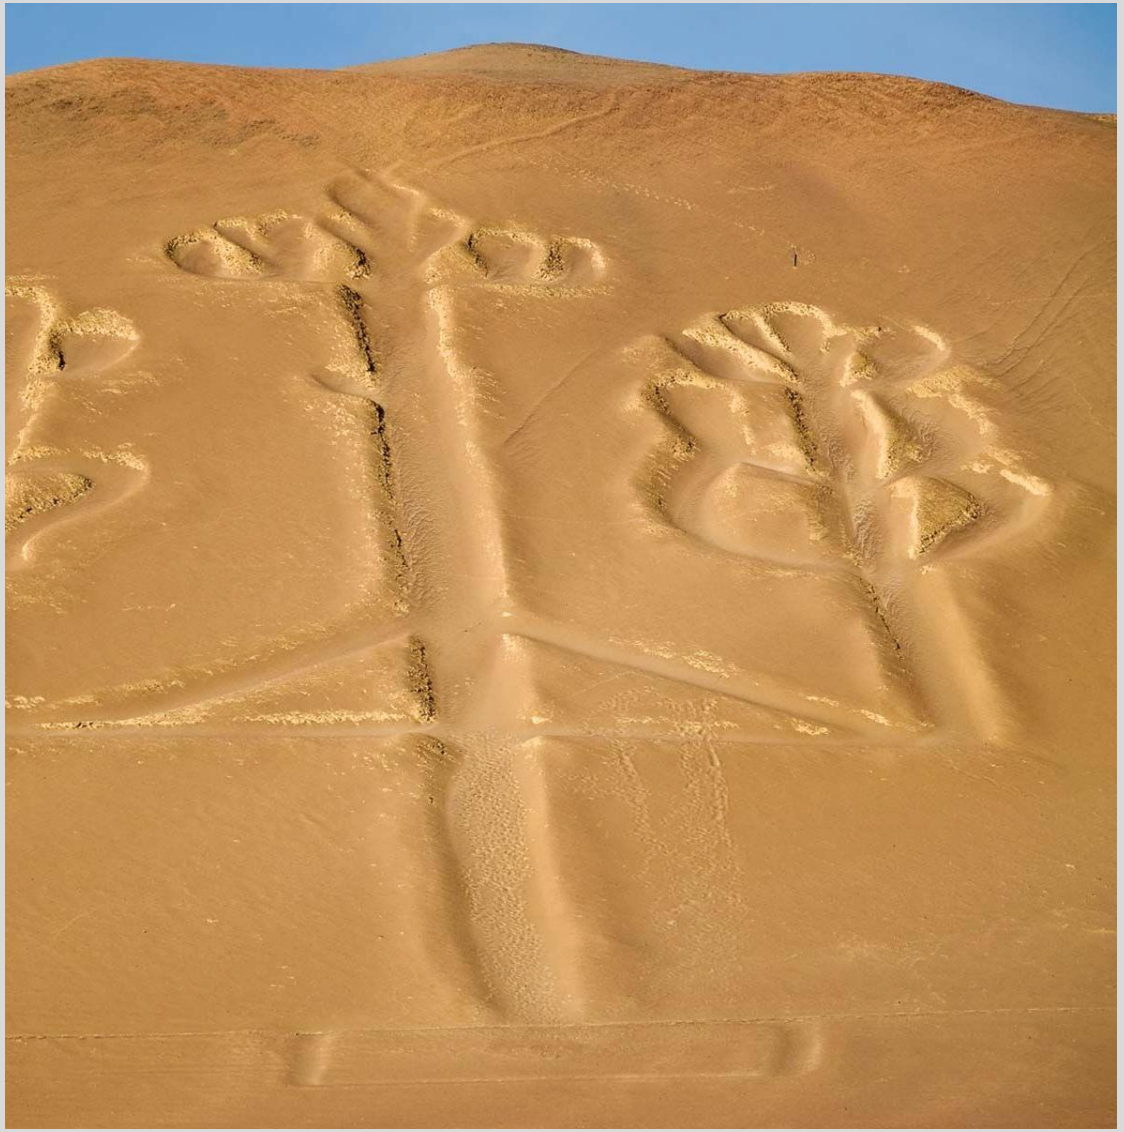

Prof. Jennifer Gosetti-Ferencei

JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY

Inside Lascaux, 1947.Ralph Morse—Time & Life Pictures/Getty Images

Nazca Lines; photo credit Encyclopedia Britannica © Jgz/Fotolia

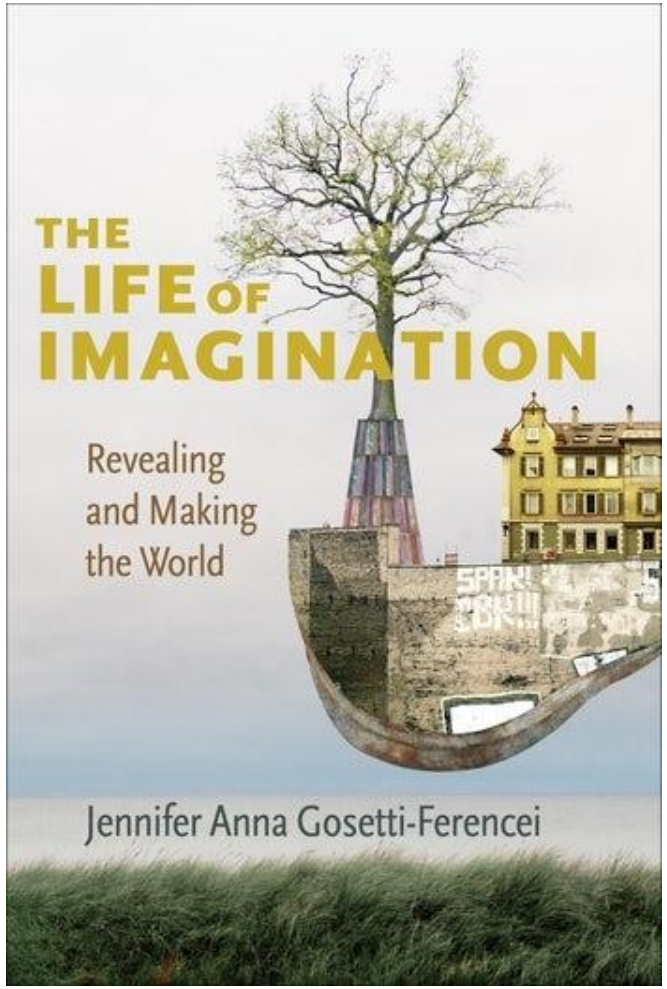

Leonardo da Vinci, Paris Manuscript B, folio 83v, aerial screw,; photo credit Photography Luc Viatour Institut de France

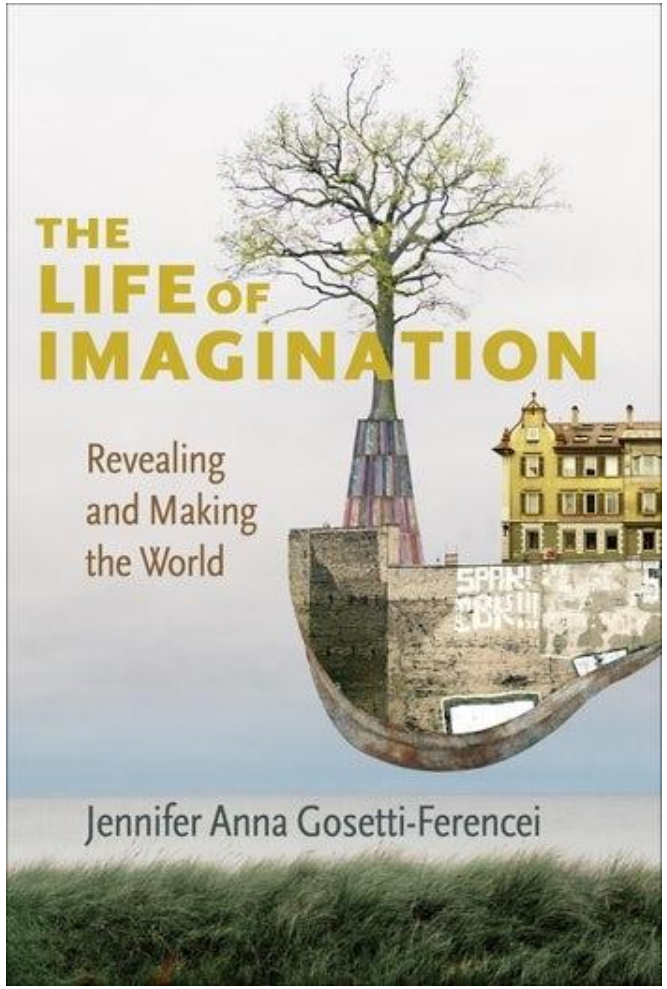

Katsushika Hokusai, Kanagawa-oki Nami Ura, Metropolitan Museum of Art

Vincent van Gogh, Starry Night, scanned by the Google Art Project

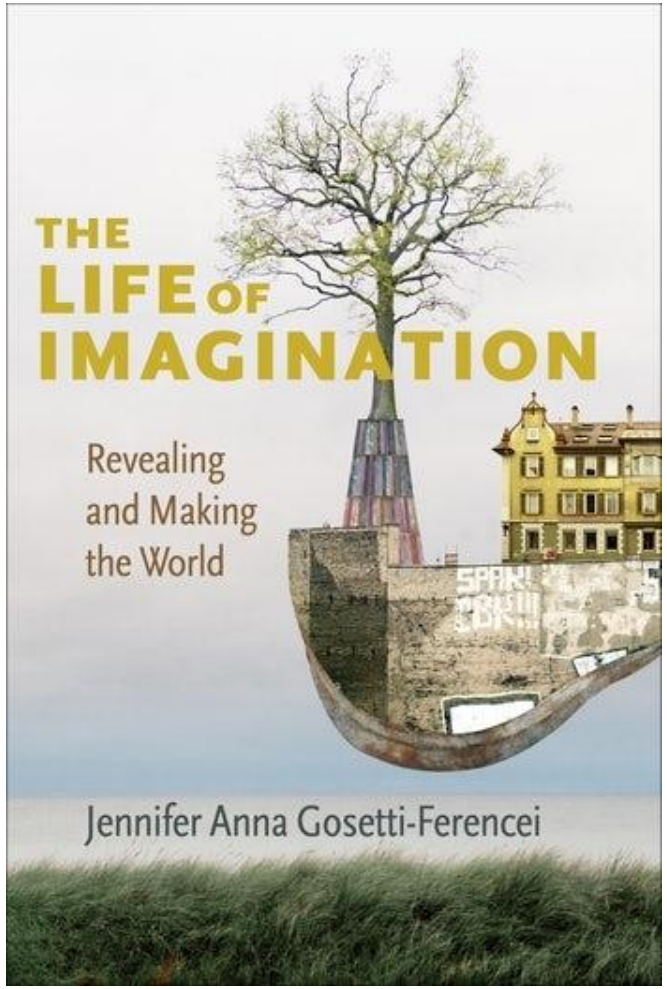

"Creativity is the transformative engagement of mental or material sources to generate new (iconic, linguistic, material, or corporeal) expressions, new ideas or objects."

"Creativity is the transformative engagement of mental or material sources to generate new (iconic, linguistic, material, or corporeal) expressions, new ideas or objects."

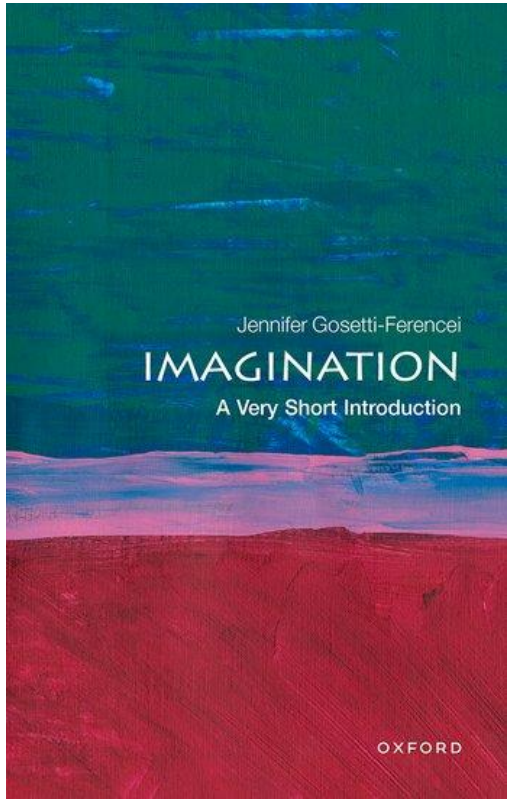

"Creativity is the expressive elaboration of other modes of imagination, in deliberate engagement of cognitive play."

"Creativity is the transformative engagement of mental or material sources to generate new (iconic, linguistic, material, or corporeal) expressions, new ideas or objects."

"Creativity is the expressive elaboration of other modes of imagination, in deliberate engagement of cognitive play."

"Creativity involves the integration of possibilities."

“Creativity makes manifest and expressive the imagination that enlivens and liberates human thinking and supports our apprehension of a meaningful world.”

Pieter Bruegel the Elder, Landscape with the Fall of Icarus, c. 1560, Royal Museums of Fine Arts of Belgium, Brussels.

Pieter Bruegel the Elder, Landscape with the Fall of Icarus, c. 1560, Royal Museums of Fine Arts of Belgium, Brussels.